A FIEND AND HIS WILD IRE.
At Minneapolis, on Saturday Gov.
Cough sentenced Harry Hayward, the murderer of Catherine Ging, to be hanged next Wednesday. Hayward heard the news of his doom from Sheriff Holborg's lips. The prisoner evinced no sign of breaking down, but, on the other hand, repeated the awful execrations against his brother Adry, which or late have been the only indication that he appreciated the seriousness of his position.

"Well Harry," said the sheriff, as he approached Hayward, "I've come to tell you that the Governor has signed your death warrant and fixed it for next Wednesday." "That is a d—long time to wait for a railroad train," was the prisoner's ejaculation.

"If you are in the depot it's a long time," said the sheriff, "but you're tracked for eternity. You have a good many things to consider before Wednesday; you have little time left to stay here."

"There are a few things I'd like to straighten out, and a few folks I'd like to get even with. If I had my brother Adry here," and Harry stood up and climbed his fists and shook them from side to side, adding, "If I had my brother Adry here, I would take him entirely out and stretch them like a clothes line back and forth through this cell. I am not quite so mad at Bixt as folks think, but if father, mother and brother (Adry Hayward) were dead I would be the happiest man in the world."

"Well Harry," the sheriff broke in.
"I see you have some sympathy left in you yet."

"No," said Harry, "I have not any sympathy, but I feel there ought to be some."

"Here Hayward began to dictate a statement to Jailer West, in regard to the jail breaking episode and other incidents of his jail life.

The statement is somewhat incoherent and decidedly bloodthirsty. It starts out: "A short time is just as good as a longer time and I am as ready now as I ever shall be. I had rather be hung than go to Sullwater for life. If the governor would come over here and talk with me, I would tell him some things. I've had a d—d good time here, and I will have a good time yet. I have no kick coming."

"They ought to go back to the old times. People are too soft hearted now. If I had Adry here, I'd cut his eyes out and his heart out, and have Bixt look on then I'd cut them up and throw them to the dogs. I'm not made of milk and water."

"Turning to the sheriff at this point, Hayward asked: "I have a right to ask three persons in to see the hanging, hav't I?"

"On being told that he had he said:
"I'd have the Dalton brothers, Bill Cook and Cole Younger, and I'd give them two good revolvers apiece."

The statement then takes up the matter of the prisoner's projected escape. The main portion of this recital is devoted to roasting Ed. Stevens, a local attorney, who, Hayward claims, acted the part of a friend in need and then played him false. Hayward claims to have paid Stevens $455, and that Stevens failed to perform what he promised to do for that sum.

"May the curse of God fall on you and yours, and allow me from the minute I drop from the scaffold to haunt you day and night until your death. Then I will welcome you on the brink of hell with a red-hot iron."

These were the farewell words of Harry Hayward to his brother Adry yesterday afternoon. He hurled them at the latter as he descended the stairs leading to the tier in which the prisoner was confined and passed through the iron doorway to the outer office. It was their last meeting on earth, and such the murderer intended it to be.

The meeting between the brothers was arranged by the parents who implored the condemned man to see Adry once more before he died.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5,000 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by L. Stabler & Co., druggists.

If you are anxious to find the most reliable blood purifier, read in Ayer's Almanac the testimonials of those who have been cured of such terrible diseases as catarrh, rheumatism, and scrofula, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Then govern yourself accordingly.

A False Diagnosis.
La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact, are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief.
